

POLITICAL ECONOMY

COURSE CODE: ECO-15111

OBJECTIVE:

Political economy is the study of political institutions and their impact in the economic results from “rational selection” perspective, meaning individuals have stable objectives and preferences and they will do everything to maximize their own wellbeing from both political and economic scope. Political economy is one of the most active fields in economy. The material seen in class is restrictive; the students interested in political economy beyond the topics analyzed in this course may ask the teacher for some extra references.

PROGRAM:

1. Direct democracy and spatial models
2. Elections with two candidates
3. Elections with more than two candidates
4. Legislatures
5. Groups of interest: information and contributions in campaign
6. Held accountable
7. Democratization

EVALUATION

MID-TERM	30%
FINAL EXAM	40%
EXERCISES	30%

If the grade of the final exam is greater than the grade calculated before it, only the grade of the final exam will be considered.